ARTHUR G. ATHANASIOU

Alas, my lords, the fleeting day!
Alas, the sweet and cyclic sun!
E'en lovers of the limpid moon
Through all their cool and dusky dreams
Doth bless Her for a borrowed light,
And we, my lords, what of our Sun?
Will we reflect it half as bright?

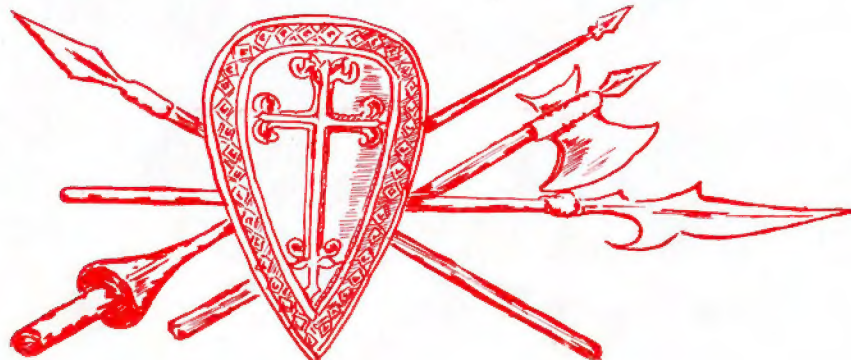

Prologue

Oh, hear of those wondrous days when Knighthood was in flower,
And every hour a harlequin arrayed in tessellated splendor.
I make my tale of pale Knights in burnished armour,
Of jousts, of pawing, tasselled steeds,
Of high courtly deeds, soft courtly words,
Of the unbridled Pride of Blood that heeds
But lusty drums and clamorous trumpets,
Of the silver sheen of keen steel swords
That sing of valour with each glinting stroke,
Of tournaments, of shining shields of gold
That wink i' the sun and give him back his glory manifold,
Of proud and plumed casques, of the lean
And eager lance, of red banners brave, seen
On a sunny day, of enchanted bowers,
Of lovely ladies lonely in high castle towers,
Of tinted, tinkling Jesters' caps, of manly comradeship,
Of a chill morning static with the thrill of a horn,
Of staring falcons downy-winged and pitiless as ferrets,
Of spare and raging hounds, of the trembling fox that glides and slips
And weaves the greenwoods like tawny smoke.
I sing of the noble Arthur and of his dear and disenchanted Guinevere,
Of lynx-eyed Vivien as sly as she was fair,
Of shadowy Merlin and the piteous Lancelot,
Of faint and flowing streams that whisper down to Camelot.

The inward worth of men was not a minor then
Nor meekness taken for servility.
The flash of the Age reflects but the glitter of souls-
Their bounteous fountains do shame our grudging doles
Of Charity. Loved they the Christ and sang Him Canticles in Stone,
Cathedrals! More bedazzled than any Earth-sprung queen,
Crowned not with gold but with daggers, lacy-sharp and hungry
For the heart of all that is unclean.
The flash of the Age reflects but the glitter of souls,
But let it be to You a beacon or a star.
Yea, let it be a star, for seeking it you ever must look up.
The earth is good; the gentle rain would not pollute an angel's tongue,
But you are destined for a richer cup.
Therefore, Kings' sons and daughters, lift your eyes
Unto the blue-hung vasty skies
And mark your star; look with love
And, I vow, its splendor will unseat the sun.
Oh Kings' sons and daughters, if you have heart, and heart doth move,
You will match the mournful moon with tear for icy fear
Till God for pity snatch you to Him from your puny sphere.
But, should you shame your star, beware!
God doth allow no flaw nor dullness there.

Ad Multos Annos !

In 1918, Thomas P. Dooley inaugurated the agricultural course at Jamaica Plain High School. He was the first to teach agriculture in a Boston high school, and his efforts were so successful that the course quickly grew in popularity. For thirty years, he has been Head of a five-man department with such specialties as dairy industries, vegetable gardening, poultry, floriculture, and landscape gardening. From a class of a few pupils who accompanied him on outside practice in an ancient "flivver," the course developed so that a bus and a station wagon are now used to take classes to outside projects.

Mr. Dooley early gained the respect of young men for his earnest efforts and for his gift of understanding. In a day when guidance was yet a thing of the distant future, he was a preceptor who encouraged boys and led them to believe in themselves. His success as a teacher and leader is attested by the throngs of former students who gratefully acknowledge their debt to him. Among his former students who have declared, "But for 'Tom' Dooley's advice and encouragement, I might never have gone to college," was the eminent scientist from Yale University, Dr. Oswald Tippo, who addressed our Honors Assembly in 1956.

Many of the most distinguished graduates of our high school were the students of Thomas P. Dooley. Generally, they attribute part of their success to the "earning while learning" aspect of their agricultural course. It has been wisely said of Mr. Dooley that "while he was teaching youngsters how to grow plants, he was, in fact, showing them how to grow as men."

The success of the agricultural course over the past forty years is to a great extent, the result of Mr. Dooley's founding years. To him is due full honor for having created here, in a city high school, a department of agriculture that has received national recognition.

In grateful appreciation of his contribution to Jamaica Plain High School, the Class of 1958 has dedicated this Yearbook to Mr. Thomas P. Dooley.

Ave Atque Vale!

In looking over this nineteenth edition of the Yearbook, I wish to congratulate the faculty members and pupil committees who produced it. As the years pass, each book is better than its predecessor. This one is no exception. The art work is particularly original and attractive.

I have noted with interest that throughout the pages of the book the theme of the drawings deals with the period of chivalry, that wonderful time in history of knights and ladies, of jousts and tournaments, of castles and moats, of pages and squires. These were the days of courage, honor, and justice, when the medieval knights banded together under special codes of honor and duty to defend their castles and their families with their lives.

It has not been the lot of you seniors to do physical combat for the goal you have attained here, but you have had your mental jousts and tournaments along the educational road you have traveled. The fact that you have earned your diploma shows that you have not only met the intellectual requirements prescribed, but also the moral standards. To each of you, therefore, my wishes for a successful and happy career. Remember, the school is always open to you whether to obtain advice or to renew old friendships.

It is most appropriate that this book should be dedicated to Mr. Thomas P. Dooley, who will retire at the close of this school year. Mr. Dooley has been Head of the Agricultural Department since its inception in 1918. This school has developed not only a local reputation in the field of agriculture, but a national reputation as well. For the pioneering work which he did when the program was organized, and the great success which it has had over the years, credit in great measure is due to his leadership. To Mr. Dooley we extend our gratitude for the work he has accomplished and wish for him many years of health and happiness.

FACULTY

1955-1958

Let us recall that gloomy morning in September 1955 when we first approached J.P. with "butterflies in our stomachs." After finding our way in by the wrong door, we nervously paced the corridors with our new, squeaky shoes until the time came to assemble in the hall. Upon asking directions from a senior, we found ourselves searching for a "staircase to the fourth floor" where we would find the assembly hall. Realizing we had been made the subject of a practical joke, we thought it best to continue on our own. After several attempts, we finally reached the hall where we were assigned to homerooms by Mr. O'Leary and Mr. Buck.

In the homerooms, we strained our finger muscles by exercising them for the first time in two months, filling out those terrible program cards. Remember XX267? That was the hardest to decipher, but, eventually, it turned out to be gym. During the first few weeks, we feebly attempted not only to absorb the confusing A, B, and C schedules, but also to determine our correct lunch period. After several days of two lunches and tardiness for our next class, we were "encouraged" by our teachers to forego such pleasures. Gradually, we adapted ourselves to the new environment and buckled down to our studies.

ties and even minor privileges, such as free filing in the corridors that made us feel more adult. This was high school--and we liked it.

In the fall of '56 we returned to J.P. with that "know-all" look. We even entered by the right door! Soon we were busy renewing old friendships and making new ones.

As the year progressed, we joined the various clubs or sought part-time work through the guidance office. This year the Key Club started showing movies to raise funds for the purchase of a trophy case. Since they were shown on our wide vision screen, no one beyond the first fifteen rows could hear it, but everyone got his quarter's worth of fun. Speaking of sound, remember your first reaction to the cheers of our new gym teacher, Miss Russell? We can never say that she lacks school spirit!

It was during this year that our Clarion won first prize in a contest sponsored by the Boston Globe for an Arthurian ballad written by Mary O'Connor. All these activities, our studies, our enjoyment of a higher social position are what caused our Junior year to be a memorable one.

We returned to J.P. in '57. It was hard to believe that our high school days had passed so quickly and at last we were Seniors. We looked down upon those "baby-faced" sophomores and juniors, not mentioning the freshmen tots, with that exalted look of Experience. It was our turn to be the leaders!

Who was it that said the senior year was easy? On the academic side, there was more homework, with less time in which to do it: Yearbook pictures to be taken, and college applications to be filed. However, although there was more work to do, we enjoyed this year most of all. Our football team rose out of its slump and even crushed our traditional rival, Hyde Park. At Christmas, we were entertained by Hum and Strum plus that ever-famous quartet Messrs. O'Leary, Buck, Murphy, and Dugan. In the second half of the year, plans were underway for this year's Talent and Fashion shows. Remember the confusion caused by rehearsals? Then came the happiest event of the Senior year--the Prom. The good times had there will always be remembered. Finally, after the Class Banquet, Graduation Day rolled around, finding us a little sad to be leaving all our old friends and J.P.

We will never forget J.P.H. and the wonderful teachers who have helped prepare us for the adult world. No matter what the future may hold, we shall always remember the most important years of our lives, our happy days spent at Jamaica Plain High School.

Gerald O'Neil

During the year, we enjoyed the privileges that accompanied high school life. Most of us attended the dance at the "Y" sponsored by the Key Club; we'll always remember the fun at the Bowling Tournament. These events were followed by a successful Science Fair and Fashion Show. It was these activi-

Last Will and Testament.

We, the class of 1958, having passed all sanity, loyalty, and health tests, despite rumors to the contrary, do hereby publish this as our last will and testament.

To Mr. Casey, we leave the comfortable knowledge of the thousands he has aided in their flight from the chaos of Ignorance to the order that is Education.

To the Juniors, we leave geometry, because we know they'll enjoy it so very, very much.

To the Sophomores, we leave all our left over and worn out "wise cracks."

To the little Freshmen, we leave discount coupons for the Elevated and the assurance that they will grow, - honestly.

To our overworked, but understanding Miss Mullin, we leave love, gratitude, admiration--and 200 secretaries.

To the witty, wise, and erudite Mr. Brickley--the abolishment of singing commercials.

To Mrs. Hurley, we leave careful football players, cautious basketball players, prudent hockey fiends, and heedful devotees of the Modern Dance.

To Miss Howe, we leave some glue to mend her "cracked" singing voice.

To Miss Russell, Cheers! Cheers! Cheers!

To Mr. Landrigan--an iron-topped desk, and un-iron-topped pupils.

To Mr. Mealy--A classroom hung with purple velvet to better display the fine, keen, diamond conciseness of his mind.

To Miss O'Connell, we leave a little larger closet.

To Miss Donlan, we leave a 100 years' supply of "idea pills" to feed to her future Yearbook staffs.

To Mr. Best, a class of kowtowing darlings.

To Mr. Dugan--an automatic ticket seller.

To Miss O'Malley, we leave a "NO LOITERING" sign done in purple and gold.

To Mr. Bond-Well, we leave him sniggering and chuckling over the audacity and vain-glory of Hyde Park.

To Miss Hennessey, we leave the hope that "history will not repeat itself" (It will take her years to recover from us!)

To Mrs. Gleekman--an alter ego.

To Mr. Sullivan--the fervent promise that we all will marry within two days of graduation.

To Miss Tombaugh, we leave Filene's in which she may give her merchandising class a really "realistic view of the course."

To Miss Kelly--perfumed formaldehyde!

To Miss Maguire, a velvet-covered ruler for the sake of the sophomores who are so easily frightened.

To Miss Driscoll, the introduction of paper clothes that paste together.

To Mr. Buck, we leave a baby grand complete with candelabra, Liberace, George, and Mama.

To Mr. Duffy--a nice, big, strong lock for his lab.

To Mr. O'Leary, we leave a large economy-size jar of "Quik."

To Mr. Gilligan, we leave the bounteous royalties of his favorite song--"Get a Job!"

To Miss Buckley, we leave our thumbprints--and thanks.

To Mr. McGuckian, we leave "Mr. Zero's" twin.

We of the class of 1958 have on this day of May in the year of Our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and fifty-eight, duly published and declared this foregoing instrument to be our last will and testament.

MY JOURNEY

My life is just a journey,
Across a wide, wide sea;
And whether fair or cloudy
I must sail, or cannot be.

At times the sea is stormy
And I fear my journey's end;
Then at dawn the sun appears,
And all is bright again.

Thus I sail my journey
Through gales, without a moan,
Finding grief, finding joys,
Until at last I journey Home.

FRANCES DEL CORSO '58

Globe Winner to Cover Preview of Ford Cars

By HARRY STANTON
Globe Automotive Editor

The next few days are destined to be very exciting for Frances Del Corso, co-editor of the Jamaica Plain High School magazine, The Clarion.

Frances won the contest conducted by the Globe among high school editors by writing the best essay on the subject, "What the Teen-Age Driving Program Has Done to Encourage Highway Safety."

The prize is a trip to Detroit and Dearborn, Mich., to attend the press preview 1958 models of Ford cars and trucks. And Frances also has a chance to win Ford's full four-year scholarship, including tuition, books, room and meals at the university of her choice.

For this grand prize she will be competing with about 145 other teen-age editors, all of them winners of contests conducted by major newspapers.

Frances is 16 and an honor student in Grade 12, with very high marks in all subjects. Despite this splendid showing she manages to find time for extra-curricular activities and an after-school job that contributes to the family income. Her home is at 16 East Brookline st., Boston, where she lives with her mother, Mrs. Rita Del Corso, a nurse.

First Plane Ride

Frances is scheduled to fly tomorrow by American Airlines to Detroit where she will be a guest of Ford Motor Co. First of her many thrills will be her first airplane ride. When she arrives at Willow Run airport, she will be met by Ford representatives. Buses will take her and other contestants downtown.

At Detroit's Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel, Frances will share a room with another girl contestant of about her age. The Ford Co. will underwrite all expenses, including transportation, room, meals, and even a small sum of money for incidental expenses.

Next thrill will be Frances' first really long distance call to tell her mother of her safe arrival and to share her excitement in the great adventure. Then there will be a special "hospitality room" get-together with soft drinks, delectable things to nibble, and a chance to get acquainted with other winners from all over the nation. Tickets to "Around the World in 80 Days" will be given those who wish them.

Tuesday morning the serious business of the two-day convale will begin right after breakfast with a talk to the group by W. J. Cooper, Ford division general sales manager. Then buses will take Frances and her associates to the Ford Rotunda at Dearborn to see the 1958 Fords and a stage show prepared for Ford dealers and their salesmen.

Luncheon will be served at the Ford Styling Rotunda and here Frances will see next year's line of Ford trucks, see a presentation of Ford Co. methods of achieving quality production and listen to a

A copy of the story written by Miss Del Corso will be entered in the competition for the four-year college scholarship, together with a five-page questionnaire filled with information needed by the judges to select the winner of this grand prize.

Entries will be screened by three

Teen Girl Views Rides '58 Ford With New Engine

By FRANCES DEL CORSO
DEARBORN, Mich., Oct. 16—A new line of Ford cars and trucks was unveiled here yesterday. Standing changes have been made in these new, sleek and powerful vehicles.

Frances Del Corso, teen-age representative of the Globe, will cover the Ford trip to Detroit.

prove this winner. The 1958 Ford has a new engine. This more accessible engine has better breathing and more speed without the wear and tear of former motors. In future years the improvement will increase the trade-in value of Fords they say.

Another important feature is the economy of the new Ford. The predicted 15 percent better mileage is 15 percent better.

Very interesting is the 1958 styling. The new models are longer, lower and more streamlined than ever before. Features now offered are twin headlights, the padded dashboard, air suspension and many other new and exciting details.

I had a chance to take a test ride in a 1958 Ford equipped with coil springs and leaf springs, and then another ride in one with the new air suspension.

The road was composed of bumps, curves and many other obstacles. Even while traveling at a high speed the car with the air suspension minimized the jolts and bumps in the one with the conventional springs.

Other trip-agers visited the Ford test track. This was one of the most thrilling events I shall ever experience. I had a chance to take a test ride in a new 1958 Ford equipped with a new leaf spring and new air ride in one with a high speed. In Ford's experienced test driving at a high speed, various other obstacles, bumps and rate of speed, air suspension bumps so the one with con-ings. K. Bescham, Ford Division president and Ford Division general manager, described a test of a 1958 Ford 500 four-door sedan which was taken to Detroit Monday after a round-the-world trip. Its route included England, France, Greece, Turkey, Iran, Afghanistan, Pakistan, India, and the Pacific Ocean and driven non-stop from San Francisco to Detroit.

This morning the teen-age press saw a stage show demonstrating the new Ford to present their salesmen. In the afternoon each teen-ager was introduced to Henry Ford II, who was present at his office. I had another wonderful experience in the afternoon when I was introduced to Louis Seitzer, editor of the Cleveland Press. They were asked questions concerning the Ford Division. Many participated by asking clear and intelligent questions.

-This completed three days of being a junior reporter. Because of this, each teen-ager will return home with a better understanding of the problems of regular reporters and of the automobile industry.

Co-operative Merchandising

Co-operative retail training provides supervised on-the-job experience for these seniors. They spend the morning in school; the rest of the day they put into practice what has been learned: getting along with people, good selling elements, arranging attractive displays, and obtaining information about various items of merchandise. These boys and girls are selling, cashiering, pricing stock, running I.B.M. machines, and wrapping gifts. This work experience shows them what they need to become successful employees. By the end of the year, they are generally ready for promotion.
